

Osaka University

(Osaka Prefecture)

One-to-One Advisement, a Variety of Class Offerings, and Goal Achievement Oriented Courses

■ Introduction to Our University

① Profile of Osaka University

Having been founded as Osaka Imperial University in 1931, Osaka University has a long legacy. In October 2007, it merged with Osaka University of Foreign Studies to become the new Osaka University. Its current efforts are focused on not merely educating students in a single field of study, but producing talented persons with advanced specializations and a broad, interdisciplinary perspective. The university currently has 11 academic faculties, as well as 16 graduate schools, 6 research institutes, 4 libraries, 2 hospitals, and more than 30 educational research institutes. It has an enrollment of over 24,400 students and around 6,600 staff members. Osaka University has three campuses: Suita, Toyonaka, and Minoh. The Japanese Studies program is conducted mainly at the Center for Japanese Language and Culture (CJLC) on the Minoh campus.

② Results of International Exchange

(as of May 1, 2018)

Inter-university exchange Agreements: 125
Students study abroad: 1,707

③ Number of foreign exchange students and Japanese Studies students accepted over the last three years

2018: International students 2,480, J-program 40
2017: International students 2,273, J-program 58
2016: International students 2,184, J-program 54

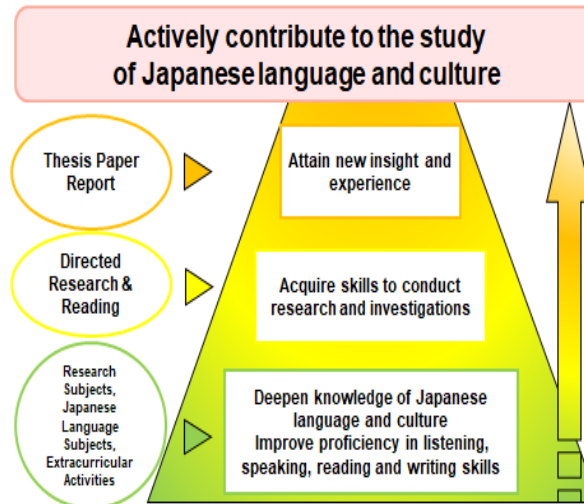

④ Local Features

Minoh City lies in the northern part of Osaka Prefecture in a region referred to as Hokusetsu. The Saito area in Minoh city is welcoming to international students and functions as an international culture park; developments are underway for a host family system and other forms of exchange programs.

■ Course Overview

① Learning Objectives

The course is intended mainly to study about Japan and Japanese culture with supplementary study to improve Japanese language proficiency.

② Course Features

☆ Attentive Individual Instruction

Each student of the course is assigned an advisor who offers general guidance on both academic and non-academic issues and holds small-group classes for one class every week. During these classes, the advisor provides the students with instruction based on their study themes.

☆ Wide Selection of Class Offerings

Over 100 weekly classes have been established entirely for Japanese Studies students. These classes are intended to improve their skills and proficiency in Japanese language, as well as develop knowledge required for their research in various fields of Japanese Studies. Students may freely choose subjects according to their levels and academic objectives.

☆ Two Courses in Support of Individual Objectives

J-program includes two courses.

○ Research Course:

This course is designed for students interested in research on Japanese language and culture. Students gain research skills by acquiring knowledge and methodology of each research field. At the end of this course, students complete a thesis detailing the results of their research.

○ Practical Japanese Course:

This course is designed for students aspiring to work broadly in society. Students gain comprehensive skills through reporting about their activities, engaging in group discussions, and participating in course activities both on and off campus. At the end of this course, students complete a report on the results of their research and activities.

③ Total Number of Students

60: 40 students with embassy recommendation,
20 students with university recommendation

④ Qualifications and Conditions of Applicants

Foreign exchange students satisfying the following requirements may apply for this program.

1. Applicants must be undergraduate students at a foreign (non-Japanese) university majoring in fields related to Japanese language or Japanese culture at the time of arriving in and leaving Japan.
2. Applicants are expected to have studied Japanese for over two years.
3. Applicants are expected to have fundamental cultural background knowledge of Japan.

⑤ Program Goals

1. To improve Japanese proficiency by taking lessons in Japanese Language Subjects.
2. To deepen the knowledge about Japanese language and culture by taking lessons in Research Subjects.
3. Acquire skills to conduct research and investigations by taking lessons in Directed Research and Reading.
4. To be able to write a research paper or a report in Japanese as well as make an oral presentation based on the result of the research and study during the program.

NOTE: Most students reach a degree of proficiency in Japanese equivalent to level N1 of JLPT or more at the time of completion of the program.

⑥ Period of Program

October 2019 – August 2020

The completion ceremony is scheduled for early August 2020. (The completion ceremony in 2018 was September 7th.)

NOTE: It is eleven months program from this year.

NOTE: The orientations will start at the end of September, therefore you need to arrive in Japan before that.

⑦ General Outline of Subjects Offered and Features

There are two semesters each year. Classes in J-program are given for 15 weeks in each semester. All classes are held in Japanese.

One class period lasts 90 minutes. Students should take a placement test for every semester. There are three levels in Japanese proficiency: intermediate, upper-intermediate, and advanced levels.

1) Required Subjects

Students are required to take three types of subjects: Directed Research and Reading, Japanese Language Subjects, and Research Subjects.

☆ Directed Research and Reading (JDR)

Students are assigned to classes of Directed Research and Reading (JDR) depending on the courses they belong to. JDR is exclusive to this program. It is held for 30 hours in a semester. This subject offers attentive guidance to students in preparation for research papers and reports according to their own study fields. This is a major feature in this program.

☆ Japanese Language Subjects

(approximately 60 classes per semester)

These subjects are designed to improve students' skills and proficiency in Japanese. These classes consist of small number of students. They are divided into 3 levels: intermediate, upper-intermediate, and advanced. Students are offered 6 categories of Japanese Language Subjects:

- Reading •Listening •Writing •Speaking
- Grammar & Vocabulary: To improve vocabulary (the basis of all Japanese language abilities) focusing on grammar and sentence patterns.
- Kanji & Vocabulary: To improve vocabulary (the basis of all Japanese language abilities) focusing on Kanji and Chinese loan words.

☆ Research Subjects

(approximately 40 classes per semester)

These subjects allow students to gain the requisite knowledge and skills to conduct research in their field. Students are offered 2 levels: upper-intermediate and advanced.

The main classes offered are as follows:

- Japanese Linguistics: Phonetics and Phonology, Morphology, Syntax, Pragmatics, Semantics, Linguistic Typology, Dialectology, Japanese Language History
- Japanese Language Education: Japanese Language Pedagogy, Conversation Analysis, Second Language Acquisition
- Japanese Thought: Japanese Traditional Culture, Japanese Religion, Japanese Folklore
- Japanese History: Japanese History, Tea Ceremony, Japanese Clothing History, Japanese Art
- Japanese Literature: Classical/Modern Japanese Literature, Japanese Traditional Performance Arts
- Japanese Contemporary Culture: Sociology, Women's Studies, Cross-Cultural Comparison, Anime Studies
- Japanese Social Sciences: Economics, Business Administration, International Relations Theory, etc.

It is a major feature of this program that international students are offered so many exclusive classes. 100 classes or more of Japanese Language Subjects and Research Subjects per week are provided for each semester. Students may choose approximately 20 classes (600 hours) or more in two semesters according to their Japanese levels and objectives.

2) Off Campus

Directed Research and Reading (JDR) offers some field trips and workshops. (e.g.: sake brewery field trip, shopping street field trip, newspaper company field trip, interpretation and translation seminar, etc.). Some research classes offer a variety of off campus activities necessary for their objectives. (e.g.: art museum field trips, noh performances, etc.). To improve students' Japanese language skills and to deepen their understanding of Japanese language, culture and society, the CJLC also plans various activities on and off campus. (e.g.: field trips, kabuki and bunraku performances, etc.).

3) Contents of Research Topics

Students are allowed to choose their research topics, according to their own interest.

The examples of the research topics are as follows:

- Study of Role Language in Translation
- Study of Kansai Dialect in Animation and Manga
- Comparative Study of Japanese and Korean Temperature Expressions
- Study on Teaching Accent in Japanese Language Education
- Study on Rakugo in Kyoto and Vicinity
- Study on Ghost Stories of Japanese Universities, etc.

4) Co-learning Classes with Japanese Students
Two Japanese literature classes (Classical/Modern Japanese Literature) are held with Japanese students in the first and second semesters. Some classes relating to Japanese language and culture may also be offered by other faculties only in the second semester, according to students' levels of Japanese.

5) Other Classes
Japanese culture experience-based classes, etc.

■ Accommodations

There are several dormitories on campus (e.g. Minoh Foreign Students Dormitory, fee: 25,000 yen per month [*]) available for Japanese Studies Program students. In cases where they are not available, the university will help students to find a room in a private apartment house near the campus (rent: 40,000 ~ 50,000 yen per month).
NOTE: This is the fee as of 2018. In case the dormitory fee is revised in 2019, the revised fee is applied.

■ Follow-up of Alumni

Every year the CJLC Alumni Survey Project strives to obtain information about the progress of students postgraduation, many of whom go on to become graduate students, university staffs, embassy personnel, and figures in Japanese industry. Transcripts or certificates of completion will be issued to alumni as needed. Alumni living and working in Japan are also invited to participate in the annual 'Graduates Lecture' event, providing current students with an opportunity to learn about the various possibilities after graduation.
